

Postal Workers Returning In Several Large Cities

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Striking postal workers returned to their jobs in Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and much of Connecticut and New Jersey today.

There were hints of a break in New York, where federal troops sorted mail on President Nixon's orders.

The Pentagon denied reports that troops who worked in New York post offices until 1 a.m.

had been ordered to delay their return this morning. However, National Guardsmen who also were called up on the President's orders, were held in armories and were to be sent to the post offices after lunch.

Normal mail deliveries resumed in Philadelphia as 3,000 letter carriers returned to work in that city, last holdout in Pennsylvania.

All of Connecticut's major post offices were back at full operation except Hartford, where clerks were picketing and scheduled to vote. Carriers had voted not to cross clerks' picket lines.

Workers returned in Jersey City, Asbury Park, Morristown, Red Bank, Lakewood and New Brunswick, N.J., while in Newark a vote was scheduled later in the day.

While operations were returning to normal in Detroit, postal workers at Lansing, Mich., made good their threat to strike if the President called in troops in New York. Several Detroit suburbs also continued to strike.

Officials of the Chicago branch of the National Association of Letter Carriers led the return in that city. A post office spokesman indicated that the men had returned at 32 of 52 neighborhood branches.

In Detroit, Robert Purdue, director of postal operations, said the workers appeared to be returning in full force at the 6 a.m. shift change. Picket lines went down in front of the main city post office.

Pickets were still up at the Military Ocean Terminal in Brooklyn and most were bitter over the President's decision to deploy the troops. But there appeared to be some sentiment for a return.

The majority of the pickets said they would not go back until they got word from the local president.

National Guard troops began to assemble at armories in the New York metropolitan area at 6 a.m. in accordance with Pentagon directives.

Maj. Gen. Martin H. Foery, their commanding officer, said he thought the earliest his men would move into the post offices would be in the afternoon "if the strikers don't come back."

In Washington, Monday, congressional leaders told the House and Senate they may have to skip their Easter recess to stand by for possible emergency action.

Reaction among union leaders to the President's action ranged from doubt that the untrained servicemen could handle the job to expressions of fear of possible violence.

There were no confrontations, however, as the first units of unarmed soldiers and sailors moved into the General Post Of-

Anti-ABM Campaign is Underway

By GARNETT JOSEPH
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

WARRENSBURG — The initial steps in mobilizing an anti-ABM campaign in Pettis and Johnson Counties were taken Monday night at a meeting called here by Citizens Concerned About the ABM.

Among the measures discussed were telegram and letter drives, encouraging Missouri Senators Eagleton and Symington and Rep. William Randall to vote against expanding the ABM into the Whiteman Air Force Base area, town meetings and fact sheets to inform the public about the missiles, and anti-ABM demonstrations organized mainly by students from Central Missouri State College and the University of Missouri.

The ABM, or anti-ballistic missile, is designed to intercept incoming enemy missiles. The Nixon administration is seeking to expand ABM (also known as Safeguard) coverage to protect Whiteman Air Force Base missiles.

About 40 people attended the meeting, which was held on the C.M.S.C. campus. Included in the group were representatives from Kansas City, Sedalia and the University of Missouri-Columbia. The Rev. Marvin Albright represented Sedalia residents who oppose the ABM.

The program featured a speech on the ABM by Dr. John Swomley, professor of Christian ethics at St. Paul's School of Theology in Kansas City. Dr. Swomley holds a Ph.D. in political science and is author of the book, "The Military Establishment."

Dr. Swomley outlined the reasons why the Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations opposed the ABM, and discussed what he termed the various technological, military and financial drawbacks to the program.

A question and answer period followed Dr. Swomley's speech. In response to a comment that many Sedalians favor ABM because of the influx of personnel and money into the area, Dr. Swomley questioned whether this is always beneficial. Often when bases are built, he said, area real estate values and commodity prices go up. This aids the business and real estate interests in a community, but workers in the lower middle and lower classes suffer in the squeeze of inflation, he said.

It was announced at the meeting that a press conference would be held in Columbia Wednesday afternoon by the Missouri branch of the Coalition on National Priorities and Military Policy, which will announce local efforts to halt deployment of the ABM in the Whiteman area.

Democrats Announce Platform

"Experienced Leadership" will be the campaign slogan of city Democrats in their bid to maintain majority control of city offices in the April 7 election.

Tuesday the party released a 10-point platform to be used in connection with the slogan and reported all their candidates for city office had pledged to support it.

The Democrats stated that their platform was designed "to correct some deficiencies in past city administrations, to establish and maintain effective communications between various governmental activities and to work more closely with the citizens of Sedalia and promote the general welfare of the community."

Democratic mayoral candidate Palmer Nichols stated that he worked with Sam Boyle, party chairman John Vandekamp, Ralph Jones and others in drawing up the key parts of the platform.

The 10 points are:
1. "Providing candidates experienced in leadership. All candidates under the Democratic system in this campaign are experienced leaders."
2. "Provide a mayor, with

President Unveils Plan For Aiding Integration

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon unveiled today a plan for federal aid to "racially-impacted" schools—North and South—and proposed two-year spending of $1.5 billion to help them with their problems.

Nixon said his aim is to make school desegregation easier and more effective, to raise the standard of predominantly black schools and to promote interracial contact for pupils in predominantly white schools.

The President's 10,000-word statement was the most extensive ever made by a chief executive on the subject of school desegregation.

In it, Nixon restated his opposition to compulsory student busing to achieve racial balance and urged that school boards facing desegregation decisions be given wide latitude provided they act in good faith to carry out the law.

The President said some persons have interpreted administration actions as signaling an effort to turn back the clock on desegregation.

"We are not backing away," he declared. "The constitutional mandate will be enforced."

Nixon laid claim to dramatic desegregation progress during his first year in office, saying:

"In the past year alone, the number of black children attending Southern schools held to be in compliance has doubled, from less than 600,000 to nearly 1,200,000—representing 40 per cent of the Negro student population."

A year earlier the proportion was 23 per cent.

However, Nixon for the most part advocated a cautious, deliberate approach to desegregation problems.

"If we are to be realists, we must recognize that in a free society there are limits to the amount of government coercion that can reasonably be used; that in achieving desegregation we must proceed with the least possible disruption of the education of the nation's children..." Nixon said.

In broaching his $1.5 billion spending plan, the President said that "While raising the quality of education in all schools, we shall concentrate especially on racially-impacted schools, and particularly on equalizing those schools that are furthest behind."

He said he will ask Congress to divert $500 million, previously earmarked for other domestic programs, for his racially-impacted school project in the 1971 fiscal year that begins July 1.

"For fiscal 1972," he said, "I have ordered that $1 billion be budgeted for the same purposes."

Nixon said the money would be distributed on the basis of four priority undertakings:

—Meeting "special needs of desegregating (or recently desegregated) districts for additional facilities, personnel and training required to get the new, unitary system successfully started."

—Assisting racially-impacted schools where de facto segregation persists because of neighborhood housing patterns. There, he said, "immediate infusions of money can make a real difference in terms of educational effectiveness."

—Helping fill "the special

Two Meningitis Cases Treated

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two cases of meningitis are being treated at North Kansas City Memorial Hospital, Dr. Robert W. Schultz, Clay County health director, disclosed Monday.

A 2½-year-old boy was admitted to the hospital last Wednesday and was expected to go home today.

The other patient, a 4½-month-old girl, was admitted Monday and was in satisfactory condition.

Neither patient had contact with each other before going to the hospital nor with anyone from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., Schultz said. Four patients have died recently at Ft. Wood.

"I see no cause for alarm at the moment," Schultz said.

Other public health officials said no other new cases were reported elsewhere in the Kansas City area. A 16-year-old Grandview girl died of the disease last Thursday. Grandview schools reopened today after being closed last Friday.

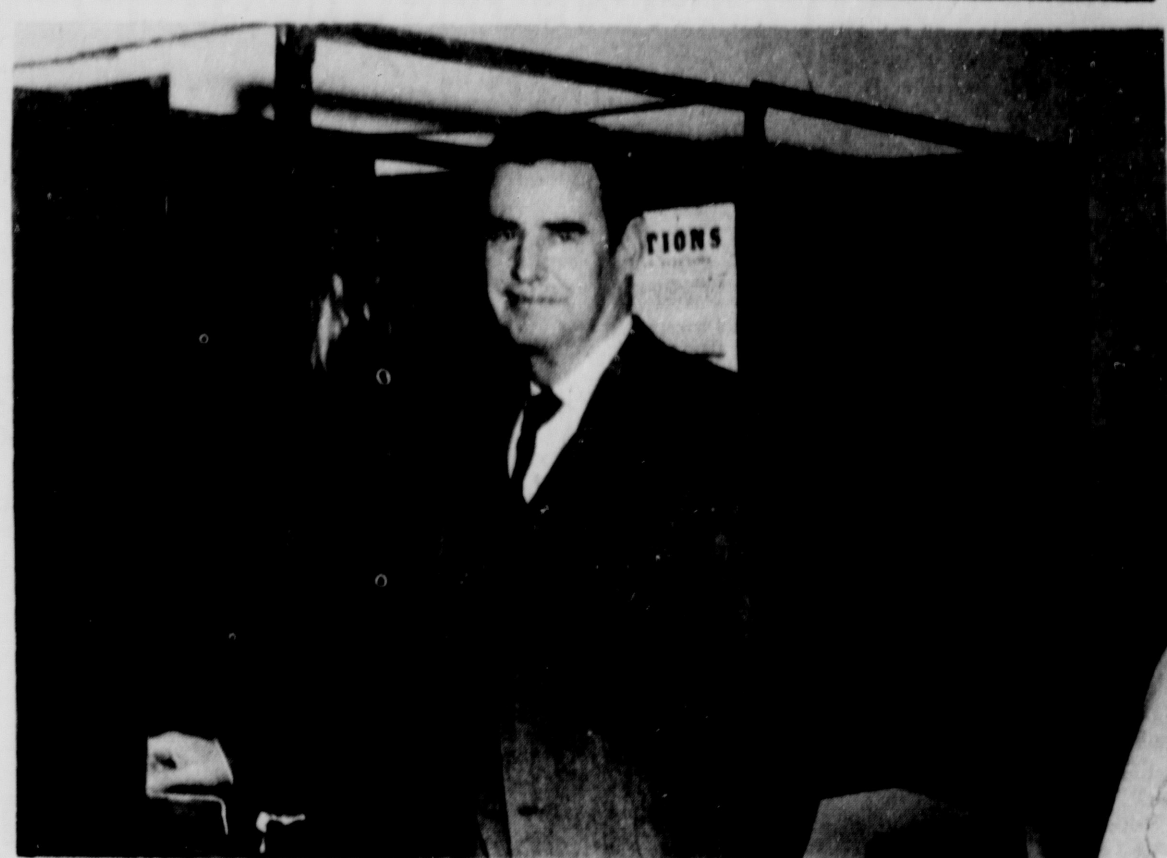

WEATHER

Increasing cloudiness tonight with chance of rain by morning and during Wednesday. Low tonight 35 to 40. High for Wednesday low 40s to near 50. Probability for measurable precipitation 30 per cent tonight 60 Wednesday.

The temperature Tuesday was 30 at 7 a.m. and 55 at noon. Low Monday night was 30.

SFCC Trustees Decide To Renew Present Levy

The board of trustees of State Fair Community College voted at their regular meeting Monday night to renew the district junior college levy of 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The tax is paid by property owners in Pettis and Benton Counties.

Turning to athletics, the board discussed a possible arrangement with the State Fair Roadrunner Booster Club to furnish meals to college basketball athletes on scholarship during the basketball season, at their regular meeting at the college at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The purposes of the meals was described as two-fold — to lessen the burden on the student from having to work during basketball season and giving him time to study, as well as to furnish a good meal at regular times of the day.

College president Fred Davis stated, "We do not want to put more emphasis on anything other than education. Providing meals to athletes during the basketball season would lessen the burden of having to work, therefore giving the student more time to study."

Presently scholarships are awarded to athletes, providing tuition, fees and books, with the Roadrunners Booster Club providing housing. The meals would be new next year, and an added incentive to draw talented athletes to the college.

Davis stated that effective next year, there will be 15 athletic scholarships available, whereas 20 scholarships were available this year. The reduction was due to lack of funds, he added.

The board also discussed instituting a lecture-tutorial program in the American history class next year. This is a new program for S.F.C.C., which brings the student and the instructor into a "one to one" relationship.

In other business, the board voted to accept a recommendation to employ 18 instructors in the academic program and 11 in the vocational-technical program for the 1970-71 college year.

Marine Helicopter Explodes Over Laos

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Marine helicopter was hit by enemy ground fire and exploded over the lower panhandle of Laos last Saturday, killing all four men aboard, the U.S. Command announced today.

U.S. spokesmen refused to discuss the helicopter's mission. The American air war in the Laotian panhandle is directed chiefly against North Vietnamese troops and supplies moving along the Ho Chi Minh Trail to South Vietnam. A U.S. Skyraider fighter-bomber was shot down over the upper panhandle Saturday, and the helicopter could have been taking part in the search for the missing pilot.

It was the first helicopter reported shot down over Laos in the two weeks since the U.S. Command began reporting aircraft lost in operations there. Ten planes have been reported lost over Laos in that period.

The reverse ratio has prevailed in South Vietnam, where 18 helicopters and one plane have been reported lost since March 10. Because helicopters usually fly in close support of ground troops, they presumably are flying many more missions in Vietnam than in Laos.

No new ground fighting involving American troops was reported today. South Vietnamese forces reported 62 enemy troops killed in a battle in the Mekong Delta 120 miles southwest of Saigon, but 36 of the dead were credited to American helicopter gunships.

Sources said 11 South Vietnamese were killed and 30 were wounded.

South Korean headquarters said its forces killed four North Vietnamese company commanders early today in an ambush on the coast six miles northeast of Binh Khe. The four, all lieutenants, were identified as company commanders by papers on them, and apparently they were returning from a staff meeting, spokesmen said.

The Saigon government's pacification report made its monthly appearance and said 88.5 per cent of the population, or

Easter Egg Yearly Hunt Is Scheduled

Sedalia children, from toddlers through elementary school age, have been invited to participate in the annual V.F.W. East Egg Hunt at 9 a.m. Saturday in Centennial Park.

Paul Wright, in charge of the hunt, said that small children will have an area of their own to search for the eggs, separate from the older children.

It will take V.F.W. members about two hours prior to the hunt to hide the eight cases of colored eggs, each of which contain prizes ranging in value from 5 cents to a dollar.

Sihanouk is Ready for Power Struggle

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodia's deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, said today he will try to fight his way back to power.

According to reports from Japanese correspondents in Peking, Sihanouk said he would form a government of national unity and "national liberation army" that would have the support of "brotherly nations," presumably meaning North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi, said that if Sihanouk's comeback attempt is supported by the 40,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops who are operating along Cambodia's border with South Vietnam, the conservatives in Phnom Penh who deposed the prince could not survive for long.

The newspaper added that if these "alien Vietnamese Communist troops" take action, the United States might intervene in support of Cambodian neutrality. But this appeared most unlikely in view of the Nixon administration's efforts to withdraw from Vietnam and the opposition in Congress to expansion of the U.S. involvement in the Indochinese peninsula.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers told a news conference in Washington Monday the United States recognizes the sovereignty, neutrality and independence of Cambodia and hopes that recent developments will not widen the Vietnam war. He said Cambodia has not asked for military help and he did not anticipate that it would.

North Vietnam, the Viet Cong, Communist China and North Korea all have indicated they support Sihanouk against the Cambodian government and parliament but have not specified what if anything they would do to return him to power.

The situation in Phnom Penh, where Sihanouk's handpicked parliament voted unanimously Wednesday to depose him while he was in Paris, continued calm.

reported that four flights to or through Cambodia operated on schedule Monday, the first commercial flights into the country since the coup.

A correspondent for the Times of London, Fred Emery, reported from Phnom Penh that the United States has asked for the release of the hijacked munitions ship Columbia Eagle, but Premier Lon Nol said he would hold onto it because "there is a risk of misunderstanding."

"We are just going to leave it there," Gen. Nol said. The interview did not elaborate on what Nol meant by "a misunderstanding."

Asked what he intended to do with the captain and 13 crew-men, the general said: "At the moment I think we've rather lost sight of them, but it seems they are somewhere hereabouts. We've been more concerned with other events."

The Columbia Eagle was hijacked into Cambodian waters March 14 by two seamen who were given asylum when the ship anchored in Sihanoukville.

Gen. Nol also denied speculation that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had a hand in the coup that brought down Sihanouk.

Leave Meatloaf To Cooking Columns

Dear Ann Landers: Recently across the nation millions of eager readers searched their newspapers for your compassionate advice, your acerbic wit, your gentle needling seasoned with wisdom and deep understanding. What did they find? A recipe for meatloaf. A whole column. Please, Ann, leave the meatloaf to the food editors. Stick to your knitting — of our emotional breaks. Recipes we can get other places. What you give us cannot be duplicated. — A devoted Reader In Akron

Dear Ak.: Your letter doesn't indicate whether you are male or female, but I'll risk it. Here's a kiss from Chicago. X. Got it?

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell people to keep their mouths shut and not tell children things they ought not know. Our oldest child, a girl age 10, came home crying last Friday. She was truly heartbroken. A neighbor — an adult woman and herself the mother of three — informed Gwen that she looked enough like her daddy to be his real child. Gwen asked what she meant by that and was told, "Your Mom and Daddy adopted you, didn't you know?" Gwen did not know and she accused the woman of making up a lie. When the child came home and asked me to tell her the truth I was shocked. I had to tell her she was adopted, something I hadn't planned on doing for another five years. Gwen has been withdrawn and uncommunicative ever since. She keeps wanting to know where her real mommy and daddy are, and why they gave her away.

Everything was lovely until that neighbor opened her big mouth. Now we have a depressed and unhappy little girl on our hands. Please print this as a lesson to others who feel inclined to mess up lives. — Wheeling

Dear Wheel: Put the blame where it belongs, lady. Adopted children should be told as soon as they are old enough to talk, that they were chosen. They should be made to feel special. They should also be told that adoptive parents always feel fortunate because there are long waiting lists and many couples must wait for years.

If you had done this, no big-mouth neighbor could have created the problem you are now facing. I am printing your letter so others will not make the mistake of waiting until a youngster is half grown before he is told the truth.

Dear Ann Landers: About seven months ago my husband started to write to a 14-year-old girl who wanted a pen pal. Clyde found her name in a magazine. I thought it was hilarious. He sent her a picture of our 16-year-old nephew — passed it off as himself, and invented a very believable character.

The joke ended two weeks ago when I learned Clyde has been writing to six young girls in five different states. I found the letters in his tackle box. He has been using a Post Office box address.

Clyde is 54 years old and seems to be getting more pleasure out of this letter game than is decent. He insists it is harmless because he will never see these girls. I'm concerned. Should I be? — Worcester

Dear W.: A 54-year-old man who gets his jollies by pretending he's a teen-ager is wacky. The best thing you can do is to try to make his life more exciting so he won't lean so heavily on fantasy.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A German-born scientist says a new U.S. Navy radar system sensitive enough to spot a housefly 10,000 feet up may prove useful in smog research, forecast and control.

The radar was designed and developed at the Naval Electronics Laboratory Center in San Diego by Dr. Juergen H. Richter, a 32-year-old native of Munich.

"We've made recordings which clearly show insects surfing on the waves of atmosphere," he said in an interview Monday.

The new radar allows U.S. scientists to monitor the lowest part of the atmosphere—the troposhere—almost continuously, Richter says.

Radar equipment available before Richter developed his system was unable to cope with certain atmospheric conditions which distort radar waves and give observers an incorrect picture, he said.

Even though a target may be observed with the naked eye, he said, little-known atmospheric phenomena previously made it impossible for the same object to be observed in a radarscope no matter how sophisticated the equipment.

Before Richter began his work, Navy scientists say little was known about the lower atmosphere because conventional soundings made by balloons and aircraft could be carried out only under favorable conditions.

The new radar, able to observe the skies constantly, is considered a valuable tool for monitoring the height of smog-spawning inversion layers, when a cold air mass is trapped in a basin with warm air above, Richter said.

"The knowledge of the presence, height and behavior of the inversion is absolutely necessary for smog research, forecasting and control," he said.

His system is also valuable in forecasting fog near airports, said Richter, because meteorologists will be able to predict from the height of the inversions when the fog will lift.

Richter said the radar also allows scientists to study clear air turbulence, a condition that causes aircraft to be buffeted without warning.

Simon the Zealot Apostle Was a Puzzling Figure

(Editor's note: Not unlike modern times, the era in which Jesus lived was swept with conflict, civil disobedience and rebellion. His purpose transcended that turmoil, yet he also was involved in it, its grinding poverty, desperate hopes and wild fevers. The following, the first of five Easter articles on revolutionary activity in his day, deals with a puzzling figure among his men, the Zealot apostle.)

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

A curtain of silence surrounds his role. He is named but not characterized. No word of his is recorded. His ways, attitudes and activities are unmentioned. But his party ignited revolution.

He also was one of the 12. Jesus deliberately chose him as an apostle—Simon the Zealot. That designation, a "Zealot," is the only information specified about him in Scripture, but the accounts were set down at a time when fuller published details could have brought Christians under even harsher repressions by the Roman empire.

For the disturbing fact was, that the 'Zealots had fanned a massive rebellion for independence, crushed only by Rome's total destruction of ancient Israel.

"No master but God!" they vowed in resisting the alien pagan regime. They circulated clandestinely in Jerusalem, meeting behind locked doors, and formed guerrilla bands in the outlying hills to strike at the Roman oppressor.

"They have an inviolable attachment to liberty, and say that God is to be their only ruler and Lord," writes the Jewish historian of that time, Flavius Josephus. He adds that they were indifferent to "any kind of death, nor indeed do they heed the tortures of their relations and friends, nor can any such fear make them call any man Lord."

The empire, however, asserted the lordship of Caesar. Despite the risks involved, the gospel writers themselves included oblique, uncritical references to the mounting resistance and also made clear Jesus' own intensifying conflict with the ruling establishment.

It was a period of pervasive unrest, of factional polarization, smouldering discontent, protests, flaring aspirations, disorders and violence, similar in some ways to the strife of the modern age.

"The truth will make you free," Jesus said.

"The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand," he proclaimed as his ministry began, the apocalyptic ring of his words pointing to some fundamental, coming change in the existing order.

It was a sizzling theme. Thousands of poor peasants of the land, the Amhaarez, mistakenly expected him to lead a movement to break the foreign yoke and restore sovereignty to God's elect nation.

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has appointed me to preach good news to the poor," he declared in his first sermon. "He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives, to set at liberty those who are oppressed."

Alarmed hometown neighbors in Nazareth, which was traversed by a road used regularly by Roman patrols in Galilee, forcibly hustled him out of the village. He later told his men:

"Behold, I send you out as sheep in the midst of wolves; so be as wise as serpents and innocent as doves. When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next. And do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul."

Besides the Zealot, some of his other apostles were passionate, temperamental men, including the impetuous Peter. Two others, James and John, called "sons of thunder," once suggested burning a village that refused to receive Jesus.

"Lord, you want us to bid fire come down from heaven and consume them?" they asked. He rebuked them for it.

His own attitude toward the flames of insurrection rising around him is never precisely delineated in the Biblical narratives. Indeed, he stressed peace, tenderness, forbearance. Yet, there also are reassuring notes of perilous initiatives.

"I came to cast fire on the earth, and would that it were kindled!" he declared. "Do you think I have come to give peace on earth? No, I tell you, but rather division." He indicated the struggle would be between the committed and the indifferent.

There also were oblique allusions to the spiraling national conflict. Apparently referring to Rome's eventual degradation of the Temple by fire, pillage and heathen sacrifices there, Jesus is quoted in Mark 13:14:

"When you see the desolating sacrilege set up where it ought not to be (let the reader understand) then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains." The mountain caves served as hideaways of the Zealot bands.

Mark's veiled parenthetical comment suggests the dangerous pressures under which he wrote for believers in Rome, where tradition says he gathered material from the apostle Peter before he was executed in 64 A.D.

But just what relationship, if any, did Jesus have with those relentless Zealot fighters for faith and freedom? The answer in the New Testament documents is obscure, perhaps purposely so, considering the precarious status of Christians then.

Yet the silence itself speaks. Although the record contains sharp criticisms by Jesus of other major factions of the time, especially the Rome-controlled collaboratorist Temple hierarchy, not a word is set down against the roadsides, others fled to the mountains to fight back.

Sporadically, with rising fury, the turmoil continued into the period of Jesus' ministry and beyond it, moving toward the eventual cataclysm in 66 A.D. Numerous Zealot leaders, Jacob, Simeon, Menahem, Athronges, Eleazar, Theudas, an Egyptian Jew, some claiming to be the Messiah to bring Godly rule, gathered fighting men in the wilderness, striking at the heathen government.

Again and again, Roman legions swept the countryside, beheading and crucifying ringleaders, slaughtering their followers, clapping thousands into chains to slave in the quarries. Troops of Pilate repeatedly smashed upheavals with savage brutality.

Once, questioners sought to trap Jesus into either an open avowal of defiance against the hated tribute tax or into servile endorsement of it by asking him whether citizens should pay it. He examined a dinarius, noting Caesar's image, and gave his subtle answer:

Seemingly, if he ever had repudiated the Zealot cause, the gospel writers would have noted it, since this might have made life safer for Christians and allayed Roman suspicions that they were subversives.

Instead, however, the accounts simply mention, tersely and without elaboration, that Jesus picked a Zealot as one of his apostles, his closest companions, heirs to his mission and builders of his church.

Some interpreters suggest the Zealot previously had quit the incendiary movements, but the gospels don't say so. Tracing the various clues, British historian-theologian S. F. G. Brandon, in a recent book issued by Scribner's, "Jesus and the Zealots," concludes that a "bond of common sympathy" must have existed between them.

"The profession of Zealots had evidently been compatible with a close association with Jesus," Brandon says. But they pursued different courses. Both emphasized the absolute sovereignty of God and sided with the victimized poor against the depredations of the mighty. But the Zealots advocated armed revolt, forcible overthrow of the occupation government.

Their movement had antecedents in the time of the Maccabees, who in 164 B.C. unleashed a long, victorious guerrilla war against the Syrian empire's attempts to impose idol worship. Even further back in Moses' time, as told in Numbers 25, the ancient Zealot prototype, Phinehas, killed to stop intrusion of Moabite idolatry into Judaism.

However, the new wave of uprisings began in 6 A.D., when Rome ordered a tax census for instituting collection of tribute from the subject population, as was imperial policy in other conquered provinces.

Already, Judea seethed with bitter hostility toward Roman rule. Just two years before, 3,600 citizens were slain by troops in a melee in Jerusalem. Rome seized control of the priesthood, naming its own religious officials, compelling daily sacrifices in the Temple in the empire's welfare.

But with the edict demanding the new tribute, a bold rabbi, Judah, and a scholarly Pharisee, Zadok, denounced it as an "introduction to slavery," urged the people to "assert their liberty" and lit a chain of revolution.

"Thus did a great and wild fury spread itself over the nation," writes Josephus. Roman legions stormed through Galilee, Samaria and Judea, razing towns in bloody reprisal. About 2,000 Jews were crucified along the roadsides, another 30,000 sold into slavery.

And beyond it, moving toward the eventual cataclysm in 66 A.D. Numerous Zealot leaders, Jacob, Simeon, Menahem, Athronges, Eleazar, Theudas, an Egyptian Jew, some claiming to be the Messiah to bring Godly rule, gathered fighting men in the wilderness, striking at the heathen government.

Again and again, Roman legions swept the countryside, beheading and crucifying ringleaders, slaughtering their followers, clapping thousands into chains to slave in the quarries. Troops of Pilate repeatedly smashed upheavals with savage brutality.

Once, questioners sought to trap Jesus into either an open avowal of defiance against the hated tribute tax or into servile endorsement of it by asking him whether citizens should pay it. He examined a dinarius, noting Caesar's image, and gave his subtle answer:

WASHINGTON (AP) — A GI education bill boosting benefits to single veterans from $130 to $175 a month has been sent to President Nixon.

The bill was given final approval Monday by the Senate. It includes special programs for high school dropouts and disadvantaged veterans.

"For the first time this nation will be offering Vietnam war veterans comparable benefits we gave veterans of the Korean conflict," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing the United States to loan submarines to Nationalist China and Greece has been approved by the House.

The measure, issued 81-66, would permit the U.S. Navy to loan three undersea vessels to the Taiwan government and continue an existing loan of one submarine to the military junta ruling Greece.

Rep. Donald L. Sikes, D-Minn., was defeated in his effort to delete the authorization to Nationalist China. He argued that the Chiang Kai-shek government now has "no submarines, no trained personnel and no repair capability."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert H. Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has urged the nation's petroleum industry to seek ways of producing lead-free gasoline for motor vehicles.

In a letter to oil company executives mailed this week Finch said that proposals before Congress would authorize the department to regulate the use of additives in motor vehicle fuels to reduce air pollution.

"I am hopeful, however, that progress can be made in advance of legislation," he stated.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two officers and 12 noncommissioned officers have been charged with violating military regulations in the operation of mess halls in Thailand, the Air Force announced Monday.

The charges range from receiving or asking bribes to larceny, the Air Force said.

The 14 men have been assigned to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines pending an investigation to determine whether courts-martial are warranted, the Air Force added.

ROTC Protest Continuing At St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — More than 400 Washington University students staged a midnight march on the home of Chancellor Thomas Elliot in a continuing protest of the presence of a Reserve Officer Training Corps program on the campus.

A cordon of St. Louis County police turned back the marchers. They returned to the campus quadrangle area.

The march followed on the heels of a near confrontation with about 50 policemen guarding the ROTC building, which was gutted by fire recently and was the scene of a demonstration early Monday.

As the marchers streamed toward the chancellor's house they chanted "one, two, three, four, ban ROTC, stop the war."

At the pre-dawn demonstration which resulted in damage to administration offices in Brookings Hall, the demonstrators chanted: "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh, the NLF is going to win."

Simons Says He'll Reveal Funds Waste
Independent mayoral candidate Ray Simons said Monday night that he'll reveal how "machine" Democrats waste the taxpayers money at a "convention" in the county courthouse April 3.
Simons addressed members of United Garment Workers Local 262 at the Labor Hall at 1102 East Third. He appealed to working class people and union members to support his campaign against "the few big money men" that control city government.
A Third Ward councilman who bolted the Democratic party at the beginning of the year, Simons said he would use money now being wasted to finance programs outlined in his platform if elected.
Simons' convention will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Assembly Room of the courthouse.

needs of those districts that have the furthest to go to catch up educationally with the rest of the nation."
—Financing of innovative techniques for providing educationally sound interracial experiences for children in racially isolated schools."
Nixon spoke of the latter concept as a potential alternative to busing.
The President said that some see massive busing—"taking children out of the schools they would normally attend, and forcing them instead to attend others more distant, often in strange or even hostile neighborhoods"—as the only alternative to "massive racial isolation." He offered the following possible option:
"For example, rather than attempting dislocation of whole schools, a portion of a child's educational activities may be shared with children from other schools. Some of his education is in a single "home-base" school, but some outside it."
If children could be brought together on "neutral" ground, he suggested, friction might be dispelled and pupils would have "an additional educational experience within an integrated setting."
Setting forth administration policies on the desegregation front, the President said, "In devising local compliance plans, primary weight should be given to the considered judgment of local school boards—provided they act in good faith, and within constitutional limits." He said that while federal advice and aid will be available on request, "Federal officials should not go beyond the requirements of law in attempting to impose their own judgment on the local school district."
The President urged that leaders of communities facing desegregation act not in defiance but by trying to smooth the path ahead.
"Where leadership has been present, where it has been mobilized, where it has been effective," Nixon said, "many districts have found that they could, after all, desegregate their schools successfully. Where local leadership has failed, the community has failed—and the schools and the children have borne the brunt of that failure."
Discussing de facto segregation reflecting housing patterns, Nixon said that of itself such situations should not be "cause for federal enforcement actions."

Governor Criticizes Policies
WASHINGTON (AP) — If inflation and rising unemployment are halted, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri predicted today, "the voters will begin supplying their own answers to the problem in November."
The Democratic governor, serving his second term, criticized Nixon policies in a speech prepared for the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America.
"What distresses me today," Hearnes said, "is the prospect that the situation might be considerably worse. One of the President's leading campaign advisors on economics is flatly predicting a severe recession. Another of his campaign advisors says that present policies will lead to increasing unemployment, perhaps reaching five and one-half per cent of the total labor force by the end of this year."
"I wonder if that unemployment figure is 'acceptable' to the public and I wonder how high the figure must go before it ceases to be 'acceptable' to the administration."
"When the President said he would 'bring us together,' most people didn't realize the meeting would be held at the unemployment office."
Hearnes suggested a wage-price policy might be advisable but said he wasn't thinking in terms of handcuffs upon labor or business.
"Wouldn't some form of wage-price policy be better," he asked, "than the prospect of five and one-half per cent unemployment? Wouldn't it be better than inflation which rises so fast it wipes out wage increases of virtually any size?"
Hearnes said the people are getting tired of having both inflation and unemployment at the same time while the President "tries to be all things to all people."
"As construction costs and interest rates push the price of a new house out of sight for most people," he said, "they fail to see the humor in putting highway construction men out of work so houses can be built."

Sedalia police were called to the Missouri Valley Sales Co., Harvey and Engineer, at 8:18 a.m. Tuesday after a break-in was discovered there.
Police found that thieves had gained entrance through a broken window on the south side of the building, they took three bottles of pop and the office key from a refrigerator, unlocked the office and took $3.50 in change from a cash box in a desk drawer, took an impact wrench from the basement of the building and returned the key to the refrigerator before leaving the building.

Officers on routine patrol discovered that vandals had thrown a rock through a window at the Selective Service office in the Brinc Building between 4:30 and 5:35 a.m. Sunday.
Sedalia police investigated two break-ins Sunday afternoon and Monday morning.
At 12:59 p.m. Sunday police were called to the Hobson and Son Carpet Center, 2805 West Broadway, by Bob Privitt, an employee who discovered the break-in at that location. Police found that an overhead door to the building had been pried open with a bar and an undetermined amount of money taken from an office drawer, after the office was ransacked.
At 12:36 a.m. Monday, police were called to Mike O'Connor's Chevrolet, 1300 South Limit, where thieves had pried open an overhead door to the body shop, ransacked the office, scratched the side of a truck and ransacked a car; damaged a tool box trying to gain entry to it and damaged four vending machines. An undetermined amount of money was taken from the machines.
No loss estimate was available from either burglary.

fice and two substations in New York and began sorting the mountains of mail.
The President announced his plan to deploy the troops during a nationwide radio-television address Monday afternoon.
"What is at issue then is the survival of a government based on law. Essential services must be maintained, and, as President, I shall meet my constitutional responsibility to see that those services are maintained," Nixon declared.
He singled out New York City for the first use of troops because that is "where the illegal stoppages began" but added that he would use military personnel elsewhere if necessary.
Altogether, some 30,000 troops were involved. The Pentagon ordered 2,500 men on active duty to the city, called up 12,000 members of the New York Army and Air National Guard and 15,500 Army, Navy and Marine Corps reservists from the New York City area.
Postmaster General Winton M. Blount set up an emergency mail handling program in New York's metropolitan area, and the troops were at work by late evening after being given instructional briefings.
In Washington, House Democratic leader Carl Albert and his Senate counterpart Mike Mansfield joined in advising congressmen that the scheduled Easter recess might have to be delayed.
Sen. Hugh Scott, the Republican leader, said Democratic and GOP leaders agreed after meeting with the President that no action should be taken on the pay increase the strikers seek until the walkout ends.
Striking locals in at least nine cities voted to return to work today. Others, considering strike action for the first time, pledged to stay on the job until at least Friday.
Among cities where strikers voted to return were Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Milwaukee; New Haven, Conn.; Duluth and St. Paul, Minn., and Monroe, East Lansing, and Pontiac, Mich.
Postal workers in metropolitan Los Angeles adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude in meetings Monday night, as letter carriers and clerks postponed for at least another day any vote on a full-scale walkout. There was a 25 per cent absenteeism rate among postal workers there Monday.

Among these are the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, by far the largest of the aid programs; and Impacted Areas which provides funds for districts crowded because of nearby federal installations.
Nixon asked for a two-year bill and for no increases in authorizations pending a study of the effectiveness of the key programs.
But the bill would boost sharply the ESEA funds, which are channeled into districts with large numbers of children from poverty-stricken homes.

Meanwhile, Cheng Heng made what appeared to be an overture to the United States, telling the National Assembly Sihanouk "actually tried to pit certain large friendly countries against the government which springs from the Cambodian people." He said the government now will reinforce its relations "with all traditionally friendly nations, without regard to ideology."

Working the Mail

The first contingent of servicemen sets to work trying to get the mail moving again in New York City's General Post Office after President Nixon declared a state of emergency and called Army, Navy and Air Force reservists and active duty troops for emergency mail duty as the wildcat strike by letter carriers entered its seventh day Monday. Saves Barbed Wire

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Most people avoid barbed wire, but not William Crogan. The missile site construction worker collects it as a hobby.

On a weekend, he may drive 200 to 300 miles poking around for strands of it. His best finds include wire dating back to 1900 or earlier.

Some of the wire turns up in dump grounds of old farms, or from along rivers where early settlers fed cattle.

Crogan used to be a rock collector. In 1967 he switched to wire, and he keeps his specimens neatly displayed on canvas.

Scientific Cannon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A Navy destroyer escort's cannon, enlisted by science, will soon help researchers get an idea how long ago meteors hit the moon.

The weapon, fitted with a special 20-foot-long barrel, a laser beam unit and high-speed camera, was adapted by Dr. Thomas J. Ahrens, associate professor of geophysics at the California Institute of Technology. Ahrens plans to fire the cannon at a fragment of moon rock brought back by American astronauts. Instead of making an indentation on the moon rock, the "bullets" actually will erase microscopic scratches which have been grooved into the rock by stellar rays over the years.

Ahrens said that determining the force of a shock needed to erase the tracks will give a clue about how long ago the rock fragment was jolted by a meteor.

★ ★ ★ OUR PLATFORM ★ ★ ★

All Democratic candidates at recent meetings have pledged to support the party platform during their terms of office. The platform is designed to correct some of the deficiencies that have been noted under past City Administrations, to establish and maintain effective communications between various governmental activities, to work more closely with the citizens of Sedalia and promote the general welfare of the community. The party proposes to attain these goals under the following platform:

1. Providing candidates experienced in leadership. All candidates under the Democratic system in this campaign are experienced leaders.
2. Provide a Mayor with proved leadership abilities, who WANTS to be Mayor of Sedalia.
3. Elect a Mayor pledged to keep regular office hours on a full time basis. This has not been accomplished under the past several administrations.
4. Furnish a slate of candidates who are eager to cooperate with County, State and Federal officials on programs beneficial to the citizens of Sedalia and this area.
5. Improve communications between the City Administration and the various boards and committees appointed by the Administration.
6. Solicit advice from qualified citizens on all important issues.
7. Insure cooperation and communication between all departments of City Government.
8. Promote equal treatment for all citizens.
9. Promote Industrial Development for Sedalia and this area.
10. Work with business, civic and fraternal organizations in the improvement of the general welfare of the community.

Farm Roundup

Price Support Flexibility
Key Administration Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — If there is a key philosophical question involved in Nixon administration farm strategy, it probably is the quest for more flexibility in determining price support loan levels on major commodities.

Administration officials have repeatedly charged during the past year that high price support rates on wheat, cotton and feed grains hamper the American farmer on the world market.

By allowing loan rates to reflect more what international markets can bear, the argument goes, more U.S. commodities can be sold, thus expanding opportunities for producers.

The latest indication of the strategy came Monday from Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin during Senate testimony.

Hardin—as well as members of both parties in Congress—contended that a high price guarantee for a farmer's crop means it will be priced too high for foreign buyers or that expensive subsidies would have to be paid exporters to make it competitive.

The administration's farm proposal calls for adjusting price support loan rates according to world market situations.

"There would be a loan, set at a relatively low level," Hardin told the Senate Agriculture Committee, "so that the market would clear in most years."

Supplemental payments would be made to participating farmers to help make up income possibly lost from the lower price support loan rates. The administration says government outlays would continue for a while at around the present level.

Hardin has used the export argument before House and Senate farm leaders and did so again on Monday in referring to some other legislative proposals.

The plan sponsored by the Farm Coalition, representing about 25 major farm groups, came in for criticism.

Hardin said the coalition plan, calling for extension of the present farm program with some increases in benefits, would cost up to $1.5 billion more than the government spends now.

Hardin also criticized a plan offered by the United Grain Farmers calling for price supports at 100 per cent of parity and crop acreage retirement.

Hardin said this would mean supporting corn at $1.76 a bushel, based on last month's prices, compared with the actual average market price of $1.14 a bushel.

Wheat would be priced at $2.79 a bushel, compared with the actual February farm price of $1.30 per bushel.

"Price increases of this magnitude would drastically curtail export markets, or necessitate large export subsidies, and stimulate the use of substitute products at home," Hardin said.

But, as Hardin has found in talking with House farm leaders, the idea of some kind of floor under government price supports and payments is tough to wipe out.

Communications Burden

Kent Schneider, 24, soon to be ordained a United Church of Christ minister, carries the cross-like top of a telephone pole in a three mile walk up and down Chicago's Michigan Avenue Monday. He said the pole represents man's communication hangup, a contemporary style of crucifixion. Schneider plans to continue his walk through Easter. (UPI)

KC Mail Carriers Ready for Strike

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Most of the mail carriers in Kansas City are willing to strike but want to wait five days so their national officers can bargain for higher wages.

Collis Bosworth, president of Branch 30 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said 478 members voted Monday night for the five-day wait; 65 voted to strike immediately, and 84 voted against striking at any time.

Anti-Carswell Forces
Explore New Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-Carswell forces are exploring a second-line strategy they hope might attract senators otherwise thought to be bound to President Nixon's Supreme Court nomination.

Although the opponents of G. Harrold Carswell still prefer a straight defeat of the Florida federal appeals judge, they are examining closely the move suggested by Sen. Fred Harris, which would send the nomination back to the Judiciary Committee.

This probably would have the same effect—killing the nomination—but would avoid having a senator stand up and publicly oppose the President.

An example of this strategy is at work in the Senate now, with three unnamed members of the anti-Carswell forces feel would go their way if they didn't have to act directly against the nomination.

If their support can be lined up to recommit the nomination the Carswell opponents might take that short-cut over a straight up or down vote.

Although Harris, D-Okla., declined to comment, the three senators were understood to be Republicans wary of helping the Senate defeat a presidential nomination for the second time. The Senate rejected Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. on a 55-45 vote last fall.

The debate, now in its second week, was set aside today so the Senate could grapple with a controversial education bill. But the hiatus didn't mean the work on both sides of the Carswell issue had stopped.

The antinomination elements have been picking up strength and even the administration forces in the Senate concede privately the opposition could be close to the needed 51 votes to defeat Carswell.

The opponents, however, were understood to be planning more of what they refer to as "the bits and pieces," which they feel is eroding of administration support.

Another bit and piece fell into the hands of the Carswell foes Monday when the Philadelphia Bar Association's board of governors adopted a resolution calling for the nomination's defeat.

For City Office

KNOB NOSTER — Knob Noster residents met at city hall recently for the annual mass meeting, at which time candidates from each ward were nominated for the Board of Aldermen. One alderman from each ward will be elected in the city election on April 7.

Elmer Eckhoff and Morris Rigdon were nominated as candidates from the First Ward. Alderman Milton Kendrick's term expires this year.

Candidates from the Second Ward are Bill Schouten and Robert Pfannenstier. Ted Zink was also nominated but declined to accept the nomination. Curtis Judd is the outgoing alderman from this ward.

Adolf Jarolim, incumbent, Weldon Brady, Charles Foffel, and Ray Schuknecht were nominated as candidates for the Third Ward.

Why AMIBEN is today's No.1
soybean

Because it gives you, in your choice of liquid concentrate or granules, the broadest range weed and grass control on the market.

Other soybean herbicides are essentially grass killers. AMIBEN™ preemergence weedkiller not only controls a full range of grasses but also, as a bonus, controls a full range of broadleaf weeds. In fact, Amiben controls more grassy weeds and more broadleaf weeds than any competitive chemical you can buy.

Amiben gives you these advantages with safety to your crop (even in wet weather), safety to adjacent crops and to crops you may plant on the same ground next year. Other soybean herbicides may perform well within their own limits, but they are no match for Amiben... the nearest thing to a perfect soybean weed and grass killer that science has yet come up with. That's why more farmers use Amiben than any other soybean herbicide.

Post Office Lifts Ban on Private Mail Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office has lifted temporarily its ban against private firms providing mail service in New York City and at least eight other metropolitan areas where strikes have ended postal service.

The department waived, in effect, its monopoly on the handling of letter mail in the cities where incoming mail is embargoed. The embargoes were ordered to avoid vast mail pileups during the postal workers' wildcat strike for higher pay.

One private organization—which already offers the equivalent of third-class service in 42 cities in 21 states—has offered to have "a skeleton force of 50,000 workers" operating anywhere in the country in two weeks, if the government will give it a contract.

The company, the Independent Postal Systems of America (IPSA) is headquartered in Oklahoma City. It franchises similar companies elsewhere, uses bonded and uniformed carriers, and charges less for distribution of the so-called "junk mail" than the government's third-class rate.

IPSA's president, Thomas M. Murray, told the Associated Press he has wired President Nixon proposing the government end for good its monopoly on first class mail. This, he said, would let private carriers "complement the government system now and in the future," in cases where private firms could do a better or cheaper job.

Since the postal strike the IPSA headquarters have been swamped with a fantastic flood of orders and inquiries, Murray said, including calls from major mail order houses and magazines.

The Post Office Department is granted by law the exclusive right to handle first class and air mail.

This bars private carriers from handling letter mail—any mail which is sealed, which is addressed from person to person, and which is immune from being opened and inspected.

There is no apparent obstacle to private carriers handling second class mail, the spokesman said, except the much higher cost of handling addressed mail instead of the blanket coverage type of distribution which is usual for "junk mail."

However, private carriers may not use residential mail boxes. These are made to designs approved by the Post Office Department, which insists on the exclusive right to use them.

IPSA and some other similar companies, including the American Postal Corp., organized last year in Columbus, Ohio, deliver their "mailings" in plastic bags which are hung over the door knob.

There also is no legal barrier to private competition with parcel post. Many companies are in the field, and these also have been swamped with business since the postal shutdowns.

United Parcel Service offers an interstate service in most states at rates which average about the same as the U.S. parcel post.

A UPS spokesman said the company is growing not because of its prices but because "many businesses prefer us for a generally better reliability and predictability of delivery," and for services not provided by the government.

Among the government's other competitors in parcel deliveries are the long-established REA Express, the Greyhound Corp.'s package express, and the growing air freight service offered by all major air lines.

Under Postmaster General Winton Blount's orders, the Post Office refuses to accept any mail for localities under full embargo. Some areas have been placed under partial embargo; this means that airmail and first class mail with zip codes will be accepted.

Under full embargo are the New York metropolitan area including lower Westchester County; all of Connecticut, most of New Jersey, Philadelphia, Detroit, Milwaukee, and St. Paul and Minneapolis. Partial embargoes were ordered for Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Will Pay on Claims

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Stanley C. DuRose, Wisconsin insurance commissioner, said Monday he has been authorized by court order to pay 20 per cent on each allowed and unpaid claim against the former Market Mutual of Milwaukee.

Claims were made by 47,000 policy holders in Wisconsin, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Missouri.

Current claims against the firm which went into liquidation in 1962 total $2.3 million, DuRose said, adding the amount being distributed now is $478,581.

Museum Mail

Mail carriers strike or not, Biran Morrissey, right, picks up the mail for Pioneer Park, a museum-park which opens soon near Aurora, Ill. His pick up vehicle is an early 1900's restored rural mail wagon, one of more than 40 carriages on display at the park. Handing the mail to Morrissey is Aurora postmaster Leo Anderson. Aurora letter carriers went on strike Saturday. (UPI)

Cosa Nostra's Boss Is Arrested by FBI

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlo Gambino, reputedly the Cosa Nostra's "boss of all bosses," has been arrested by the FBI and charged with conspiracy to hijack an armored truck with $6 million in bank funds.

After the arrest Monday, the FBI described Gambino's role in the alleged plot as providing "automobiles for the robbery and a means to dispose of the money."

Gambino was freed in $75,000 bond after being arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Earle N. Bishopp.

The armored truck which allegedly was to be hijacked was used to deliver new money and pick up old bills from Chase Manhattan Bank branches in the city, said Daniel P. Hollman, chief of a Justice Department strike force against organized crime in Manhattan.

Federal officials did not offer any explanation why the alleged plot, said to have been put together between March 1 and May 15, 1969, was never carried out.

Hollman said Gambino considered a plan to rob the headquarters of the armored truck company, the United States Truck Corp., in Manhattan. However, the plan, which might have led to a $25 million seizure, was abandoned as too hazardous, he said.

Gambino, described by a Senate committee as one of "the most powerful underworld leaders in the United States," has been appealing a 1966 federal deportation order which is based on his entry into the United States as a 19-year-old stow-away. He is a native of Palermo, Sicily.

In addition to his position as the reputed overlord of organized crime, federal authorities say Gambino, 67, heads the 1,000-member Mafia family whose former ruler, Albert Anastasia, was slain in 1957.

In spite of his alleged crime empire and six arrests, Gambino only went to prison once, in 1937 for 22 months on a conviction for operating an illegal still.

Before bond was put up Monday, Gambino protested briefly, saying, "I'll stay in jail. I'm innocent from this accusation and I won't put up five cents for bail."

Receives Sentence In Kidnap Charge

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Wilmer Lee Stebens, 41, already serving a life sentence for murder, was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court to 20 years for kidnaping a 21-year-old woman.

He will serve the federal sentence, then will be returned to the Kansas prison to serve the remainder of his life term.

Stebens escaped from the state prison last October and abducted a student at the University of Kansas Medical Center Oct. 14. He forced her to drive him to the Clinton, Mo., area and back to Kansas City Kan., where she was released.

Stebens was captured near Greensburg, Kan., after a chase Oct. 17. He pleaded guilty to the kidnaping charge Dec. 9.

His attorney said Stebens had spent half his life in prison.

Hardin Recommends Farm Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — New farm legislation, including the acreage "set aside" approach to production controls, was recommended Monday by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin.

He also suggested a limitation on price support and crop diversion to any person under one commodity program of $10,000 a year.

The recommendations were made to the Senate Agriculture Committee which is preparing legislation to replace the current agricultural law which expires this year.

Under the voluntary "set-aside" program, farmers would set aside a certain proportion of their base acreage and become eligible for program benefits.

Under the voluntary "set-aside" program, farmers would set aside a certain proportion of their base acreage and become eligible for program benefits. It would apply to wheat, cotton and the feed grains only.

Loans on crops would be set at a relatively low level so the market would be clear in most years.

High Cost of Being Poor

It's expensive to be poor. This is no play on words but is a capsule summary of a "profile of poverty" drawn by Margaret Nelson, consumer economics specialist at the University of Wisconsin. The buying habits of middle- and upper-class Americans are influenced in part by convenience, she points out, while for poor people buying always means meeting just their immediate needs.

The poor have no chance to take advantage of seasonal or weekly sales because of the small income they have. Neither are they able to buy in quantity. They must buy in amounts they can afford that week, usually one item at a time.

The poor also have little control over where they buy because they have no baby sitter, no car, no taxi or bus money. They must buy close to home no matter what the cost.

Low-income families are further handicapped by lack of consumer know-how. They are especially vulnerable to door-to-door salesmen peddling things they don't need at inflated prices.

The average American consumer learns to buy good quality items at reasonable prices. Poor people frequently must buy shoddy merchandise because the low price—which is expensive in the long run—is all they can manage.

Poor families have no flexibility in the method of paying bills. If they can get credit, the cost is high. They have little choice in their source of loans because they are poor credit risks, so they pay both high interest rates and for long time periods.

Poverty is expensive in nonmonetary ways. Lower-quality education usually plagues the poor, hindering their ability to improve themselves. Living conditions sap energy and ability to resist disease and overcome personal problems.

In short, the poor can't afford to be frugal and "poor" isn't always lazy—it may just be tired, ill and hopeless.

Next time you wonder why more people don't lift themselves out of poverty, think about these things.

Builder, Spare That Tree

Plans for new suburban areas should include not only new streets, utility lines, water and sanitation facilities but trees as well, says noted tree expert Robert A. Bartlett.

As president of a tree-care company, Bartlett can be accused of bias. But this is one case where a special interest coincides with the greatest interest.

Every community has elaborate building code regulations. How many communities have regulations requiring that desirable trees be spared from the bulldozer, or if they must be taken, that they be replaced by new plantings?

No builder may run an open sewer across private property, even with the owner's consent. Yet the indiscriminate leveling of wooded areas—in the name of cutting costs and expediting construction—is as much an affront to public decency, if not public health.

"Shade trees are an investment in the future," says Bartlett. "Trees make communities livable. They give beauty, in the summer, mute noises, lure birds and break up harsh winds in winter. Most important of all, trees help prevent and clean polluted air."

Yet trees too often come last, if at all, in community development plans.

Military Hope to Bomb in Cambodia

WASHINGTON — The Joint Chiefs of Staff are secretly reviewing the bombing campaigns in Vietnam and Laos in anticipation of a possible request from the new Cambodian government for U.S. air support to help drive North Vietnamese troops out of Cambodia.

Under the code name, "Steel Tiger," U.S. planes have been blasting the infiltration routes that run through Laos. The Joint Chiefs would like to extend these attacks to the North Vietnamese sanctuaries in Cambodia.

A separate bombing campaign, code-named "Barrel Roll," has also been hammering the North Vietnamese build-up in northeastern Laos.

This is really a transplant of the air war that was formerly waged against North Vietnam. After the bombing was halted, the pilots were sworn to secrecy and their sorties were rerouted across the border over communist-controlled areas of Laos.

Planes from the "Barrell Roll" campaign might now be diverted to strike communist targets in Cambodia if the sanction of the new government can be obtained.

Note: President Nixon, however, has no wish to increase American involvement in Southeast Asia. He would prefer to negotiate an agreement guaranteeing the political neutralization of both Cambodia and Laos.

—More Benign Neglect—

President Nixon apparently would like to apply White House aide Pat Moynihan's doctrine of "benign neglect" to the nation's largest and most liberal city.

A visitor from New York City got an unexpected glimpse into the President's thinking at a recent White House prayer breakfast presided over by evangelist Billy Graham.

"I'm from that wild metropolis, New York City," the visitor said laughingly as he was introduced to Nixon.

"Oh yes, New York," replied the President, also smiling. "Let it die. Billy taught me to let it die and not to worry about it."

Looking Backward

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

We have a small keg of nitroglycerine to drop on the head of the first person who appears at the bottom of the stairs with a poem on an Ode to Spring in his hand. Judge O.M. FORTY YEARS AGO

Sedalia is to have a new apartment house, a 24-family, modern fireproof structure built of brick and stone on the northeast corner of Broadway and Laine avenue. It is to be erected by Harold F. Dean. The building permit places cost of the structure at $40,000 and will give to Sedalia an apartment of the most desirable kind, and relieve the housing situation here.

Coup in Cambodia May Hurt Hanoi

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

For decades in Cambodia several families have vied for economic power. They have sought political strength as a means of controlling markets, land and other less well-publicized sources of income.

Prince Sihanouk's relatives form one such family. They have grown fat and wealthy. They have made favorable economic deals with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. They have connections with French and Italian international commercial organizations.

Opponents have accused them of making millions through political corruption.

The men who reportedly engineered the Cambodian coup represent rival families.

For one, this group is understood to have close economic connections with the Cambodian Chinese merchant community. (The connection is economic, not political. Most local Chinese are businessmen, not Peking agents).

The Chinese merchants compete bitterly with the local North Vietnamese middlemen.

There is some reason to believe the "coup" in Cambodia was set off by these economic rivalries.

There are 300,000 to 600,000 North Vietnamese settlers in Cambodia. These Vietnamese are the middlemen in much of Cambodia's rice and fish trade in the villages.

They're hated by Cambodia's farmers, who compare their own poor living with that of the Viets. The situation is not unlike that in Sukarno's Indonesia, where Chinese, as middlemen, were so hated that many who were not Communist nevertheless died in the anti-Communist purges.

On the whole, these North Vietnamese residents, and the Hanoi-Viet Cong military, are supremely arrogant toward the Cambodians, whom they regard as racial inferiors.

This has led to deep hatred against all Cambodian Vietnamese. It is a hate easily fanned by Cambodian leaders.

It has gone almost without notice in the United States, but one of the heaviest Cambodian demonstration-attacks on Vietnamese communities in Cambodia of late was against a Catholic anti-Communist settlement.

The anti-North Vietnamese political moves may be devices designed to weaken the position of the Vietnamese merchants and to win popular support for the coupsters.

This explanation of the Cambodian coup will give no comfort to Hanoi. Or to the men responsible for Hanoi's war in South Vietnam.

For to achieve their aims, the men leading the coup must fan local hate against the North Vietnamese to a high pitch.

This will lead to passive resistance against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops.

It may mean the Cambodians will deliver less rice, fish and other essentials to the Communist troops.

This would make Cambodia less useful as a base against South Vietnam.

The Cambodians cannot oust the Communists by force. The Hanoi-Viet Cong armies outnumber and outgun the Cambodians. The Reds are backed by an underground. They have spies in the highest circles of the Cambodian government. They can thus force the Cambodians to feed and supply them. But that will lead to other troubles.

German Measles Vaccine Not for Pregnant Woman

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—Is gamma globulin the same as German measles vaccine? Can it safely be given to a pregnant woman?

A—Gamma globulin is a normal part of your blood serum. When a person is exposed to an infectious disease, antibodies are formed in this part of the serum. Giving immune gamma globulin transfers these antibodies (and thus a temporary immunity) from one person to another. German measles vaccine is a weakened live rubella virus that enables you yourself to build up a longer-lasting protection.

Gamma globulin may safely be given to a pregnant woman who has been exposed to German measles, but the vaccine should not be given to any woman who might possibly be pregnant because of the danger of injuring the baby.

Q—What are the functions of the pituitary?

A—The pituitary, sometimes called the master gland, is the most complicated of all our glands. The anterior pituitary secretes (1) a growth hormone, (2) corticotropin which stimulates the adrenals, (3) thyrotropin which stimulates the thyroid, (4) a hormone which stimulates the maturation of the ova in women and sperms in men and (5) a hormone that stimulates the release of the ova in women and the production of male hormone in men.

The posterior part of the pituitary produces a hormone (vasopressin) that stimulates reabsorption of water as it passes through the kidneys and another hormone (oxytocin) that stimulates uterine contractions during labor.

Q—Since 1963 my husband has been taking paraldehyde to help him sleep. Is the prolonged use of this drug harmful?

A—It is mildly habit forming. Withdrawal of the drug must be very gradual.

This column stands firmly in favor of motherhood and straightforward bridge. Of course, we temper this straightforward bridge with a little common sense and will false-card when the occasion warrants it.

All the books recommend a six-trump contract with 17 points opposite 18, but sometimes the five missing points may cause trouble, as they do this time.

South can count only 10 sure winners and must depend on the major suits for the two more he needs. He decides to duck the first heart, since he is going to have to lose a heart trick some time or other.

He wins the continuation and can find no better play than to lead a spade toward dummy and finesse the jack. It works and business is looking up.

He decides to postpone the easy club and diamond plays and promptly leads a third round of hearts. East has to discard and a careless East might chuck a spade but this East is too smart for that and lets the three of diamonds go.

It really doesn't make much difference how the play develops but South will lead a spade toward dummy at some stage or other and, at this point, it is up to West to make what we call an automatic false-card. South knows about the queen but he doesn't know about the 10.

South will probably make the slam in spite of the false-card. He will cash all the diamonds and clubs and get no information except that East started with four diamonds to West's three. Then, when he finally leads the third spade from dummy, he will know that one of West's cards is a heart. The other will be either the 10 of spades or whatever club is missing. If he plays East for the 10 and is wrong, he will be down two tricks, so he rises with the king and is home.

U.N. Not Too Big

BY CYRENE DEAR

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "The United Nations is not as strong as it has been or as it ought to be," were the words expressed by Ambassador Edvard Hambro, U.N. permanent representative from Norway and head of the Norwegian Mission Ambassador Hambro will be elected President of the United Nations General Assembly on September 15th. The presidency is rotated by a "gentlemen's agreement" from among its geographically based groups. The present president is Angie Brooks, an African woman.

Ambassador Hambro said, "I was chosen to be Norway's representative because of my political background and as an international lawyer. I was a member of the Storting (Norwegian Parliament) from Bergen. My father was president of the Storting at one time and represented his country at the League of Nations in Geneva, Switzerland. Here at the U.N. I am interested in presenting our Norwegian foreign policy and in helping to make and carry out the policy of the United Nations. There is also close interplay between the Norwegian Mission here and the Norwegian office."

In answer to the question, "Is the U.N. getting too big, and do the small new nations control the voting because there are so many of them?" Ambassador Hambro replied, "I don't think it matters so much about the vote, because there is usually general agreement among the nations before a matter comes to a vote. Also I don't think the U.N. is too big, and there is no need to worry about voting on the basis of population. If all the great powers are against something then there is not much use for the small nations to try to outvote them."

Concerning the Security Council, the Ambassador said, "It is the instrument for collaboration among the nations. The chief decisions are made in Washington, London, Moscow and Paris. From these capitals, instructions are sent to their ambassadors at the U.N. who are on the Security Council."

He believes that Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, who has been conferring with Secretary General U Thant, may return to the Middle East. Dr. Jarring has also met with the United Nations ambassadors from the Big Four as well as representatives from Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Ambassador Hambro was present at the organization meeting of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. He considers it a special honor to be president of the General Assembly in its silver anniversary year. "There is no need to change the charter of the United Nations. It can work. The important thing is to support the charter in good faith," he said.

Speaking of Ambassador Charles W. Yost, the United States Ambassador, he added, "Ambassador Yost is highly respected and very well liked in the U.N." Two former U.S. ambassadors, Adlai Stevenson and Arthur Goldberg, with whom the Norwegian also served, were members of the United Nations Cabinet.

One of Ambassador Hambro's great interests at the U.N. is the Seabed Pact, "to establish an international regime so plainly viable that states will in fact ratify the treaties establishing it." The Seabed Committee expects to make a report to the General Assembly in the fall during Hambro's presidency. "We must this year," he said, "adopt the principle to govern this common heritage of mankind—the great resources of the seabed. It is a question outside of national jurisdictions. There will have to be international binding treaties so that all nations can profit from the tremendous resources of oil, minerals, and food that can be obtained from below the water. The official policy of the U.N. is in favor of the Seabed Pact."

Ambassador Hambro speaks frequently to university students. "I like to find out what goes on outside the United Nations. Violence on the campus is all wrong, but if academic administrations are not willing to improve, then the students must be heard," he said.

"I believe truly that there will be peace in the world because of the stupidity of war. Peaceful coexistence is possible," he stated with deep feeling.

The Norwegian Ambassador and his French-English wife live near Mayor Lindsay's Gracie Mansion. The Hambros have four grown children. They spend as much time as possible in Norway with those who live there. The youngest, a 21-year-old daughter, is in New York. The young looking, distinguished Ambassador, impeccably mannered, spoke warmly of his congenial family life.

Cause for Weeping

By BETTY CANARY

I wonder why women haven't banded together to found an organization called The Society for the Prevention of Housecleaning.

At least, we might stop referring to it as My housecleaning, as in "Time to start My house cleaning." Unless one lives alone.

Don't tell me. I already know. One starts My cleaning after doing My breakfast dishes. My dishes? I ate from four cereal bowls and two egg plates? I'll wash their dishes. And I can rinse out My coffee cup at the same time.

A woman works in My cleaning between My washing and My ironing. (If your laundry this week, included several loads of bell-bottom jeans, tights, leotards and the sheets from more than one bed, I have news for you. It's Their laundry.)

Most women say they begin My cleaning with washing My woodwork. But, is it really yours? What about those fingerprints? Can you truthfully call them My fingerprints? Probably not. Unless you are 2½ feet tall. Or walk around on your knees.

Time out to drive Our car to do My grocery shopping. My grocery shopping? You alone are eating $65 worth of food in one week?

Have you finished running My errands for the week? By actual count my personal errands consisted of one trip for the purpose of buying a typewriter ribbon. Picking up cello strings, notebook paper, four pairs of size 3 socks, going to the jeweler's for a repaired Cinderella watch, to the cleaner's for a fringed suede jacket and 24 men's shirts, well, those were Their errands.

Did you get back in time to finish mopping My kitchen floor? What a messy lady you are. That is, if you are the one dropping all that peanut butter and ice cream.

Back to My housecleaning. Perhaps I should empty My kitchen cupboards. Stuck there between the puffed wheat and jar of honey I'll find My model airplane and in the back is My eighth-grade science workbook and the silver drawer — well, I seem to be keeping several sets of My Barbie clothes among the steak knives and spatulas.

My front hall closet is just as bad. My three bowling balls are sitting on top of My three pairs of red boots and My car racing set has spilled all over. Possibly because I threw My four pairs of ice skates and two hockey sticks on top of it.

Perhaps I'll forget and do some of My mending. I seem to have ripped three pairs of jeans. My little robe printed with yellow teddybears and the ear has fallen off My Winnie-the-Pooh.

Seattle Case Due For Two Hearings

SEATTLE (AP) — Double barreled court action was in store today on the big question of whether a switch of the franchise of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee should be allowed.

A hearing on whether to grant a temporary injunction to prevent the sale and transfer of the American League baseball club was to continue before Superior Court Judge James Mifflin at 9:30 a.m.

At 2 p.m., Washington State and Seattle were to present their reasons in U.S. District Court why they should not be prevented from interfering with sale of the club to Milwaukee interests.

Last Thursday, Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., which owns the Pilots, petitioned the federal court to order the sale under the Bankruptcy Act.

William Walsh, representing Pacific Northwest Sports, said the Pilots owner would be destroyed if the team cannot be sold, and therefore, he said, Seattle still would have no major league baseball. He said the league club owners are trying to recover their original investment by trying to sell the Pilots for $10.8 million.

During Monday's session in Superior Court, testimony showed the current owners of the Pilots would profit by $1 million by sale of the team to Milwaukee, and that a contract for such a sale was signed one day before a league meeting was scheduled in Tampa, Fla., during which the transfer was to have been voted upon.

Mifflin said that as far as he could see Seattle residents don't want the club, and if it remained in the city, ticket sale and attendance wouldn't measure up to the hopes of those interested.

The judge said any decision he might make would be outweighed by the one on the bankruptcy angle.

Alfred Schweppe, a Seattle lawyer who warded off the league's vote in Tampa by obtaining legal restraints there, and who filed the first request for a restraining order in Seattle, testified the Pilot owners reached an agreement on the sale to Milwaukee interests March 9, the day before the Tampa meeting.

Dewey Soriano, president of the Pilots, testified that an agreement to sell the Pilots to Milwaukee for $10.8 million would leave the owners of the Pilots with the responsibility of settling a lease agreement with the city and making a $150,000 indemnity payment to the Pacific Coast League.

Mifflin asked if the price would cover such payments, and when Soriano said it would, the judge said the sale would leave a profit of about $1 million for investors.

The first witness, Seattle restaurant operator Dave Cohn, told Mifflin he could round up a group within several months to buy the Pilots if the team is kept in Seattle this coming season.

Cohn said the group would be willing to pay $5.25 million, which was the original cost of the franchise, but the price was negotiable.

Cohn said he believes part of the reason two other Seattle groups were attempting to buy the franchise failed was because the price was too high. Those price tags were $10.4 million and $9.5 million.

"I don't think we should have to bail management out to pay for their losses," Cohn said.

He added that he believes the problems of the year-old team are due to mismanagement.

Cohn headed a Seattle delegation that went to Chicago in October, 1967, to ask the league to give Seattle a baseball franchise.

He is a member of the Washington State Stadium Commission, and he told Mifflin that when Seattle was awarded a franchise for the 1969 season the only condition attached was that the league would have the right to pull out if a $40 million bond issue for a domed stadium failed to gain approval or if construction of the stadium wasn't started by the end of 1970.

Stadium construction plans are on schedule, Cohn said, and another witness, State Sen. Joel Pritchard of Seattle, testified the state has paid $1 million on retirement of the bond issue.

S-C Thinclads Lacking Depth and Experience

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Last year the Smith-Cotton Tigers failed to win a meet during the track season. "...but we are hoping to improve that this season," commented Head Track Coach Gary Pepin Monday.

"We had a good turnout for this year's season," added Pepin, "with exception of the freshman class. There are approximately 85 boys out thus far."

The current number (85) represents a larger turnout than usual, according to S-C officials. Pepin is being assisted by Max Fields, on the varsity level while Fred Long is handling the freshmen and Paul Swartz is coaching the eighth graders.

The lack of experience and depth looks to be the biggest obstacles that Pepin's squad will have to overcome in the upcoming campaign.

"Although inexperienced, we feel our varsity squad will be much tougher than last year," commented the thinclads' mentor.

The strong points for S-C this season should be centered mainly in distance running.

The pole vault should be another, while the shot put event could be yet another, although Pepin lacks a strong second man to add to Bill Raumaker's shot put ability.

The high jump is viewed by Pepin as another strong point for the Tigers.

Weakest of all the track and field departments could be in the sprints.

Paul Klover should be strong enough in the 220, but the Tigers are still seeking a good second and third 220 runner.

The 100-yard dash event, looking at it this early in the season, may not even figure into Pepin's plans.

Of all the above mentioned strengths and weaknesses, the distance runners and relay teams should be the strongest of all.

Bob Logan, a senior, and junior Paul Klover could figure to be Coach Pepin's most valuable assets as the season develops.

Logan, who will compete in the 880 and the mile events, currently holds the Tigers' varsity and Jennie Jaynes Stadium marks in the mile competition.

His time of 4:32.7 is the best any S-C miler has ever turned in, while the stadium clocking of 4:38.2 is also tops.

Klover, who many times last year as a sophomore ran first in events Logan ran seconds in and vice versa, is also slated to participate in the 220 and the high jump, as well as the 440 and the one mile relay team.

Charlie Moore, who just missed qualifying for the State Indoor in the one mile, leads a whole host of juniors and sophomores in the one and two-mile events.

The S-C one-mile relay team may prove to be one of the most interesting combinations this season.

All four of the now-slated participants have clocked in between :52.9 and :56.0.

Junior Mike Heembrock holds the fastest time of the four with the :52.9; Paul Klover has run a :53.5 quarter; Paul Siron has timed in at :54.6, while sophomore Pat Curry is the slowest of the four at :56.0.

Steve Lamb, a junior, could take the place or substitute for Curry. The team would probably not suffer since he also has timed in at :56.0.

The pole vault entries will probably be junior Mark Hewett, sophomore Pat Curry and senior Danny Van Dyne. All three have vaulted over 11 feet thus far in practice.

Bill Raumaker will add some strength in the shot put, but there is no one to serve as a consistent backup man.

According to Coach Pepin, the hurdles could be the key to a strong or mediocre season's showing by the Tigers.

"All our hurdlers are new to varsity competition this year," commented the S-C mentor.

Those hurdlers include Bill Parker and Rick Klein, both seniors; junior Bill Morrow and sophomores Fred Knight and Jim Blaine.

Concluding the diagnosis of his squad, Pepin said, "With a lot of hard work, we could have a real good season."

UCLA Star Has Faith In Ability

LOS ANGELES (AP)—UCLA's Sidney Wicks, voted the most valuable player in the collegiate basketball championships, says, "To tell the truth, I do not think I've played up to my full potential."

His was a simple statement of his beliefs with no braggadocio as he added, "I'll be working all summer trying to improve."

Wicks was the 6-foot-8 jumper who nullified Jacksonville's 7-2 Artis Gilmore in the NCAA finals as the Bruins won 80-69.

Asked if there was any question of how high he could jump in combatting a man one-half foot taller, Wicks told the Southern California Basketball Writers Monday:

"There was no question how high I could jump. My question was how high he could jump."

Wicks had worked last year in practice against teammate Lew Alcindor, the three-time All American who graduated after leading UCLA to three straight NCAA titles.

"Playing on this team was very rewarding to me," Wicks continued. "You get to meet other guys like Steve and John. Black and white people often don't get to know each other."

Wicks, a black man, referred to Steve Patterson and John Vallely who are white. Teammates Curtis Rowe and Henry Bibby are black. The five are the starting team who played most of the game against Jacksonville.

Tentative List Announced For Tigers' Opener

Head Smith-Cotton baseball coach Skip Schulz has announced the tentative lineup for Wednesday's opener with William Chrisman High School of Independence.

Slated to start on the mound for the Tigers in the initial road game is senior right-hander Terry Hudson.

In the infield, Chuck Huddleston will start at third with Steve Young at short, Roy Poynter at second and Dennis McFarland at first.

Charlie Snyder is set to be the opening day catcher.

All the players on the tentative lineup are seniors, with the exception of left fielder Randy Smith.

Coach Schulz pointed out that the lineup is only tentative and may undergo some changes before game time.

Jacksonville Tourney Won By Don January

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Don January, his 1970 bankroll quadrupled by more than $25,000 won in Monday's playoff for the Greater Jacksonville Open golf title, heads for Miami and the next tournament today in one of his typical streaks.

"I can't play more than four or five weeks in a row," said the 40-year-old veteran who registered his 11th victory of all time and first since 1968. "I'll play straight through the Masters and then go back to Dallas."

North Stars Trying Hard For Playoffs

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The small print in the contracts of Bill Goldsworthy and Billy Collins might just be the extra push needed to get the Minnesota North Stars into the National Hockey League playoffs.

A crucial test in General Manager Wren Blair's incentive plan is set tonight when the North Stars try to widen their one-point fourth place lead in the West Division against the fifth place Oakland Seals.

Collins, for example, earns $100 above his regular salary for each goal he gets over 10. He already has $1,400 in bonus money with 24 goals—six more than in two previous seasons combined.

"I don't like to talk about my bonus money," said Goldsworthy, "but it's much in line with Billy's."

Goldsworthy revealed Monday night he gets dividends for every goal over 18. He already has 32 goals and 27 assists. In two full seasons and parts of three others, Goldsworthy had NHL totals of 34 goals and 29 assists.

You work hard for bonus and appreciate the money," said Goldy, "but it doesn't mean that much if you don't make the playoffs. The bonus can't equal to what you gain in the playoffs. It doesn't mean much at contract time either if you don't get into the playoffs."

He has been doing it this way several years and finishing high up among the year's money winners while playing only half as much as most other tour golfers.

He also is spending more time at home, where he and Billy Martindale, a former regular on the golf tour, are building the Royal Oak Country Club course. They expect to open it in July with more than 500 members.

January beat Dale Douglass in the playoff with three straight birdie putts on the last three holes. January shot three-under-par 69 on the 6,943-yard Hidden Hills course while Douglass matched par 72.

As he stood on the 16th tee, with the match tied on Douglass' 15-foot birdie putt on the previous hole, January had two distinct thoughts.

Royals Fall Short, 15-7 To Pirates

By THE ASSOCIATE PRESS

For a team supposedly deep in good, young pitching talent, the Kansas City Royals are coming out on the short end of some horrendous scores lately in the Florida baseball exhibitions.

Pittsburgh pounded the Royals for a 15-7 victory Monday, sending them tumbling to their fifth straight exhibition defeat and a 4-10 spring record.

The St. Louis Cardinals lost 4-3 to the New York Mets, but retain one of the Grapefruit League's better marks at 9-7.

Royals' pitchers have been tagged for 54 runs, 68 hits and 12 home runs in the five defeats. That's an average of 10.8 runs, 17.6 hits and 2.5 home runs per game.

Kansas City's attack hasn't been bad. The Royals have provided their pitchers with 33 runs, 57 hits and six homers in the losing streak. In the Royals' last victory—12-4 over Detroit last Tuesday Kansas City slugged 19 hits, including two homers.

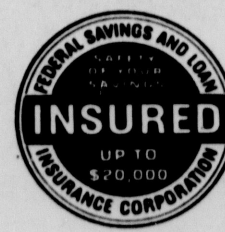

In their last six games, the Royals have scored 45 runs on 76 hits, including eight homers. Those figures are far above any offensive production the expansion club showed in 1969.

Willie Stargell, Gene Alley, Jerry May, John Jeter and Bill Mazeroski slugged the Pirates' homers off Royals pitchers Mike Hedlund, Ken Wright and Joe Warden and Al Fitzmorris Monday.

Miss Red Bird

Lynnette Lynne Loeffelman, a 19-year-old student at St. Louis University, was named "Miss Red Bird" for 1970 by the St. Louis Cardinals Baseball Club, Monday. Miss Loeffelman, donning a Cardinal baseball cap, will be the official hostess for the baseball club during the season. She is a junior at St. Louis U. where she is majoring in math.

Top Basketball Players Seen as Still Available

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association, better late than never, finally has begun its harvest of the college basketball stars with top picks Bob Lanier, Rudy Tomjanovich and Pete Maravich apparently still up for grabs.

After giving the rival American Basketball Association a three-month head start, the NBA moved up its annual draft one week and went to work Monday with Detroit starting things off with its expected selection of Lanier of St. Bonaventure.

San Diego followed with the surprising choice of Tomjanovich of Michigan, and then came the revelation that Atlanta had acquired San Francisco's pick and used it to take Maravich.

Now, with the ABA already having signed nine players, including highly regarded Dan Issel of Kentucky, Charlie Scott of North Carolina and Rick Mount of Purdue, the NBA can finally begin competing in earnest.

Lanier, a 6-foot-11, 265-pound domineering center with a light shooting touch, and Maravich, Louisiana State's three-time

All-American who is possibly basketball's greatest attraction, are the big prizes still on the vine.

Without the much-talked about merger between the leagues, which it seems now must wait until at least next year, both Lanier and Maravich appear headed for contracts that will top the reported $14 million received by Lew Alcindor last year. This despite the knee injury suffered by Lanier in the NCAA championship tournament that required surgery.

While Lanier had been rumored headed for the NBA and Maravich for the ABA—Lanier was picked by the New York Nets and Maravich by the Carolina Cougars of the ABA—both denied Monday that anything had been settled.

Saying he did not know yet who he'll sign with, Lanier said he would talk to his lawyer Wednesday and "maybe I'll have word for you then." However, he did say "there's more prestige and more competition in the NBA."

The NBA greatly increased its chances of getting Maravich when Atlanta picked him, at least according to his father, Press Oaravich, who also coached him at LSU where Pete set the all-time major college scoring record and became almost a legend in Louisiana.

The big loser turned out to be San Francisco, which reportedly gave Atlanta the choice in return for the rights to Zelmo Beaty, former Atlanta center who is headed for the ABA. The Warriors apparently, have failed to change Beaty's mind, and now have nothing.

San Diego supposedly passed Maravich because of its need for a big forward—Tomjanovich is 6-7—and the cost of Pistol Pete, if it could land him anyway.

In fact, most of the clubs went for big men on the first round.

Council Says No To Pats

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston City Council has dashed the Boston Patriots' hopes for a $16 million, 55,000-seat stadium in Neponset, near the Quincy line.

"As far as I'm concerned, this eliminates Boston as a home for the Patriots," said President Billy Sullivan of the National Football League team after the council rejected the stadium plan by a 7-2 vote Monday night.

"What gets me is that cities all over America are seeking industries and Boston is kicking one out," he said.

Then noting that the Neponset site is within a few hundred feet of his office, he added, "I'll be able to look out my window and look at that rat-infested dump forever. If the council was interested in preserving that forever, they'd do a good job."

The Pats' president said Foxboro and Haverhill in Massachusetts and an unspecified site in New Hampshire might be places the team could go.

"We may have to call ourselves the New England Patriots," he said, "but if I were betting I'd bet that in September we'll still be here. Not in Boston, but in New England."

In Honolulu, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said he would talk today with the city council members. Any announcements or comments will come later from his New York office, Rozelle said.

The commissioner added that he planned to stay in Hawaii for "a few more days," but would have no comment about the Boston situation.

Whether the vote dealt a death blow to the stadium, which seemed likely, or whether someone would attempt to salvage the plan was not immediately clear.

In any case, a spokesman said Mayor Kevin H. White would make no further effort for a stadium where the National Football League Patriots could play. The mayor was said to consider the Neponset plan the only one he could support, since it was the only stadium proposal that could be carried out at no cost to the city.

Only Councilors John E. Kerrigan and Frederick C. Langone voted for the Neponset plan, voted against it after his colleagues turned down his amendment proposing a feasibility study of both the Neponset site and another in town near South Station.

Three of the councilors voted in committee for the latter site last week.

The Patriots were under league pressure to find a playing field with at least 50,000 seats, a requirement fixed by the NFL for the 1970 season.

At the urging of Patriots' President Billy Sullivan, the league owners meeting in Honolulu last weekend promised to defer action on the Boston franchise until all possible avenues were explored.

How much longer the owners would wait in the face of the council's vote was uncertain. A clear possibility was a summons to transfer the franchise.

Common Draft Is Viewed

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association kept its money bags ready and waiting today in case Pete Maravich and Bob Lanier want to dip in, but Commissioner Jack Dolph predicted this would be the last bidding war between the ABA and the rival National Basketball Association.

"I predict there will be a common draft next year," Dolph said Monday after his 3-year-old league completed its annual player draft at the same time the NBA was holding its draft a mile downtown.

"We have proven our ability to sign players," Dolph said, "and, if need be, we'll prove it again."

The implication was that the two leagues would merge before too long, just as a sky-high bidding war forced the merger of the National and American Football Leagues.

"We have been negotiating with the NBA in good faith," Dolph said. "We have broad areas of agreement and much fewer areas of disagreement than we did a month or even two weeks ago."

A common draft was impossible this year, he said, because of "the time element—it took so long for the respective merger committees to get where they are. We didn't think we could wait, so the draft was an area in which both leagues agreed to disagree for the time being."

Not only didn't the ABA wait, it held the first four rounds of its draft in January and signed eight players last week, as follows:

Indiana Pacers—Rick Mount, Purdue; Kentucky Colonels—Dan Issel and Mike Pratt, Kentucky; and Claude Virden, Murray State; Pittsburgh Pipers—Mike Maloy, Davidson; Washington Caps—Charlie Scott, North Carolina; Dallas Chaparrals—Emanuel Cannon, Grambling; New Orleans Buccaneers—Wendell Ladner, Southern Mississippi.

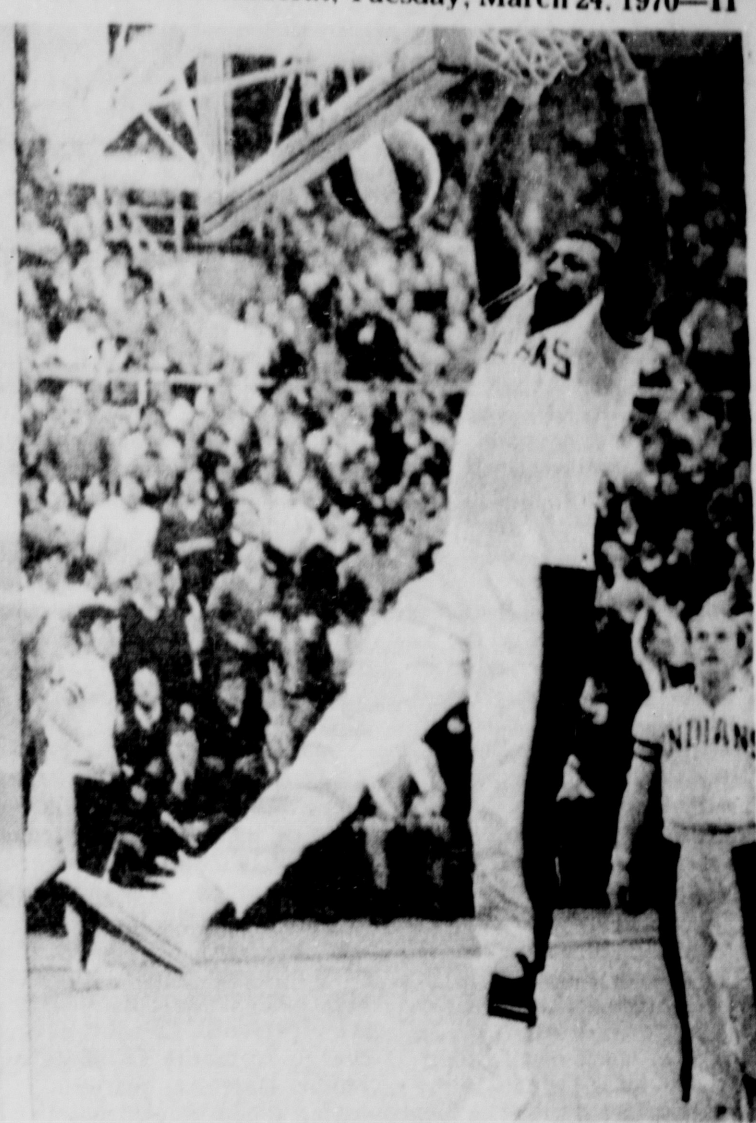

A ninth player signed Monday, the Miami Floridians announcing that Fran O'Hanlon, a backcourt man from Villanova, had come to terms.

The ABA's Carolina Cougars still had high hopes of signing Maravich, Louisiana State's all-time college scoring leader, but Lanier, the 6-foot-11 strong man from St. Bonaventure, reportedly was committed to the NBA.

Lanier was picked by New York of the ABA and Detroit of the NBA, while Atlanta of the NBA took Maravich.

Bob Lanier (right), considered by pro scouts as one of the best big men to play collegiate basketball from St. Bonaventure, was selected by the Detroit Pistons as the first draft choice of the 1970 NBA college draft and

Pete Maravich (left), LSU's All-American, was chosen by the Atlanta Hawks. The announcements were made Monday. (UPI)

Angels May Benefit From Speed

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Speed is one of the greatest things in baseball," states Manager Lefty Phillips of the California Angels whose club has more of it this season than before.

"Speed counts both offensively and defensively," Phillips continues. "It makes the other teams make mistakes."

Shortstop Jim Fregosi, starting his tenth season as an Angel, says this is the first time the first five men in the batting order have good speed.

Although Alex Johnson was acquired in trade from Cincinnati primarily for his hitting, he's also acknowledged one of the fastest in the game on the bases.

Speed is just one of the reasons the Angels are improved this season. Another big one is maturity. Pitchers Andy Messersmith, Tom Murphy and Rudy May who became the pitching mainstays for 1969 hadn't played a full major league season before.

Neither had five in the batting order who became regulars after June 1.

With the year's experience and continued emphasis on fundamentals this spring, Phillips declares, "There's no question we'll win more games. Everything depends on how many the others win."

When Lefty, a former aide to Walter Alston of the Dodgers, took over the Angels last May 27, they floundered in last place with an 11-28 record. From then on, they played 60-63, finishing in third place of the American League's Western Division.

Even with that improvement, they finished 26 games behind division winning Minnesota and 17 back of second place Oakland.

Messersmith posted the best pitching record at 16-11 after starting 0-5. May, a southpaw, wound up 10-13 after being only 1-6. Murphy finished 10-16.

Phillips must find a fourth starter and middle inning relief help while hoping Ken Tatum can come somewhere near his rookie season as the short relief hurler. After being called up on May 27, his relief work provided a tremendous boost. He was 7-2 with 22 saves and a 1.36 earned-run-average.

The Angel infield shapes up with Jim Spencer at first, Sandy Alomar at second, Fregosi at short and Aurelio Rodriguez at third.

"I feel that defensively we have as fine an infield as there is in the American League,"

New Orleans Snaps Losing Streak, 122-116

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — New Orleans snapped a four-game losing streak Monday night with a 122-116 victory over Dallas in the only action in the American Basketball Association.

Coach Babe McCarthy, a weary optimist, clapped his sweaty victors on the back and told them they still had a good chance to take it all—even if the Bucs were running last in the ABA's Western Division.

"We played well tonight for being as tired as we are," said McCarthy. "We played eight games in the last nine days—four of them in the last 72 hours—so you can imagine."

Glen Combs of Dallas was high point man of the night with 36. Steve Jones of the Bucs had 34.

The victory left New Orleans with a 36-37 record, six games behind league-leading Denver, the Bucs' foe in their next game. Dallas, now 38-36, was in third place, 4½ games behind Denver and just half a game in front of third place Los Angeles.

Phillips observes while worrying about the catching where Joe Azcue holds forth without much to back him up. Azcue slumped to a .218 average last season.

Johnson, who hit .315 with Cincinnati in 1969, holds down left field and there are those who feel he could lead the league in hitting this year. Jay Johnstone opens in center with a fight continuing for the other outfield spot.

Rick Reichardt, Roger Repoz, Jim Hicks and Bill Voss are the candidates.

Addition of utility infielder Chico Ruiz, in the Cincinnati deal, gives Phillips an opportunity to rest either Rodriguez or Alomar periodically, a situation he couldn't afford a year ago.

Summing up, Phillips sees improvement with the hitting of Johnson, more depth in pitching and more speed plus the fact his three starting pitchers have experienced a full campaign.

So also have Spencer, Alomar, Rodriguez, Johnstone and Voss. "They know they belong in the majors and that relaxes them mentally," explains the manager who himself has just completed his rookie year.

Game Rescheduled

The State Fair Community College baseball team, who were scheduled to play an opening-season doubleheader with Meramec Community College Monday in St. Louis, will play today at that same location.

Cold weather and unfavorable playing conditions forced postponement of yesterday's game.

More than 85 ticket outlets have been announced by the Kansas City Royals Baseball Club for the coming season.

This year as last, Sedalia Industrial Loan and Investment Co. of Sedalia, will be the ticket outlet for this area.

Many other Central-Missouri cities will serve as outlets for the Royals this year.

Here is a list of the Central-Missouri outlets.

Blue Springs — Blue Springs Bank, Cameron-Farmers State Bank, Chillicothe — Citizens National Bank; Columbia — Columbia National Bank; Fulton — Fulton National Bank.

Harrisonville — Citizens National Bank; Holden — Farmers and Commercial Bank; Macon — Macon Atlanta State Bank; Holden — Farmers and Commercial Bank; Macon — Macon Atlanta State Bank; Marshall — Farmers Savings Bank; Moberly — City Bank and Trust Co.

Richmond — Exchange Bank; Sedalia — Sedalia Industrial Loan and Investment Co.; Trenton — Trenton Commerce Trust Co.; Warrensburg — The Citizens Bank.

The Kansas City Royals have formed a Junior Board of Directors composed of students from 15 area high schools, Charles Truitt, vice president and treasurer, announced Saturday at a meeting of the group at the Municipal Stadium.

"The purpose of the Junior Board of Directors is to gain new ideas from young people," Truitt said. "We feel their ideas and assistance will contribute greatly to the success of major league baseball in Kansas City."

The Junior Board of Directors will meet five times per year, with one of the meetings to be held in conjunction with a luncheon of the regular board of directors.

Each of the members of the junior board was selected by the principal, coaches and teachers at his respective school on a basis of leadership quality, ability to communicate and personality. Each member of the board will serve one year between his junior and senior years of high school.

In addition, one alternate was chosen from each school on the same basis as the member. The alternate must be between his sophomore and junior years in high school and will move up as a member upon expiration of the member's term of office.

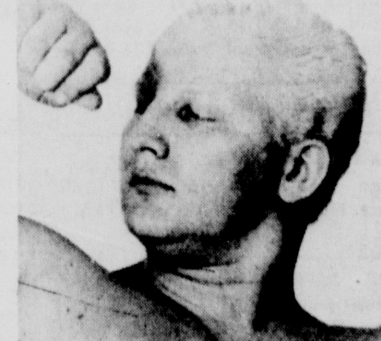

The directors and their schools are: Bob Kunz of Bishop Meigs; Chan Noah of Pembroke Country Day; Mike Rood of Shawnee Mission East; David Specht of Shawnee Mission North; Joe Joynt of Ward; Mike Hampton of Washington; Vicki Terbovich of Wyandotte; Ron Umphenour of Center; Henry Johnson, Jr. of Lincoln; Peggy Stevenson of North Kansas City; David Stafford of Northeast; Howard Knight of Raytown; Ray Stephens of Southeast; Ed Matheny of Southwest and Tim Tennett of Westport.

Alternates selected were: Cathy Lander of Bishop Meigs; Jim Levitt of Pembroke Country Day; Gordon Rock of Shawnee Mission East; Todd Morgan of Shawnee Mission North; Dennis Hurma of Ward; Gary Anderson of Washington; Jeff Teeley of Center; Thaddeus Buffington of Lincoln; Jim Billinger of North Kansas City; James Chandler of Northeast; Dennis Stites of Raytown; Frank Pope, Jr. of Southeast; Roger Parfitt of Southwest; Randy Gray of Westport and Rouin Peterson of Wyandotte.

Chain Match Slated On Wrestling Card

Tommy Martin

Nature Boy Kirby

A chain match, as gruelling an event as professional wrestling can produce, will headline ring action tonight at Convention Hall.

Colliding in that restrictive match will be bitter rivals Tommy Martin and Natureboy Kirby who engaged in a bruising battle last week in the same arena.

The match calls for the pair to be linked at the wrists by an eight-foot length of chain. The chain will assure that where one goes the other will have to follow. Martin, who won on a disqualification last Tuesday, was irate over Kirby's hit and run tactics and insisted some provision be made to prevent a recurrence. This time, they'll go to a finish.

Danny Little Bear, reigning Central States champion, will side with the 275-pound Stomper in the semifinal team event. Together they'll take on the free-swinging Cox brothers, Killer and K. Q.

The Coxes, who at one time held the North American tag crown briefly, are intent upon regaining that prize and are looking to a victory tonight to boost their chances as challengers.

Opening the show at 8:15 will be Killer Cox and the Stomper.

Evidence Suggests Nixon Seeking Lesser of Evils

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Is inflation more acceptable than recession? Some evidence suggests the Nixon administration believes so. It has, at least, taken a sudden turn toward spending rather than saving.

In late January the President vetoed an appropriation bill for health, education and antipover programs. It was, he said, $1.3 billion more than the budget request for the Health, Education and Welfare Department. "I believe the action is in the long-range interests of better education and improved health care," the President told the American people as he sat before the television cameras.

"But most important," he added, "I believe that this action that I have just taken is in the vital interests of all Americans in stopping the rise in the cost of living."

In mid-March the President took further action that, in light of his earlier analysis, would appear to be inflationary. He released $1.5 billion in construction funds that had been frozen in 1969.

The release of such an amount won't suddenly flood the nation with money, but it is expected to cut in half the already slim projected budget surplus for 1971, a surplus the President had said he counted on to slow inflation.

What happened to bring about the change? If the battle against inflation had been won, the move would be more understandable. But it hasn't. Inflation is somewhere between 5 and 6 percent.

Some support for the President's action comes from a review of economic statistics showing that—despite the continuation of inflation—the economy's growth has almost stopped.

In fact, when first-quarter reports of Gross National Product are released next month they are expected to show little real change from the October-November-December quarter.

This would be evidence that phase one of the Nixon program has worked. But when the President embarked on his economic stability program more than a year ago he warned the American people that it would be a long and painful process. It is not only to expect him to release his grip on the economy until inflation also had been conquered. That's phase two.

In order to root out inflation, it is generally agreed, some painful experiences must be undergone, one of them being unemployment. It is almost axiomatic that as an economy cools the unemployment rate rises.

This, of course, has been borne out by an increase in the jobless rate from 3.5 percent late last year to 4.2 percent of the labor force in February. That percentage might be higher now.

It also goes without saying that a president's headaches grow more intense with an economic slowdown.

Not only do workers complain, but businessmen become disturbed about profit cuts, cities complain they are forced to postpone projects, and senators report that their constituents are unhappy.

While an economy wrung dry of inflation might be a laudatory goal, observers say, it produces so many short-range problems that it might take an utterly insensitive or daring administration to bring it off.

Critics of the administration are now chuckling aloud that they knew it all the time, asserting that Nixon's determination was made up mainly of rhetoric and when the kitchen really got hot he would turn on the air conditioning.

Contends Protection Necessary

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—A Negro mother of six in suburban Washington Park said Monday her home in an otherwise all-white neighborhood has been under protection of the United Front since the garage was damaged by fire March 14 following a threat received in an anonymous letter.

The letter, said Mrs. Bernice Tate, was signed by the "White Hats." It warned, "We do not like your kind moving into our neighborhood. If you're not out by Friday, beware," she said. Since the fire, the only inconvenience the family has experienced was interruption of telephone service for a short period of time over the past weekend, she said.

"As long as they don't bother my children, I'm not too concerned about the house," said Mrs. Tate, who moved into her home March 2 from a racially mixed neighborhood.

"I'm not moving out because of threats," she said. "If they want me out it won't solve the problem, because I'll move down the street."

Mrs. Tate, 40, said she and her family moved from East St. Louis to Washington Park "because the house we had lived in wasn't fit to live in."

An FBI agent said the case is under investigation for possible violation of the 1964 federal civil rights law.

NET Idea On Trial Is Boring

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The National Educational Network launched an ambitious project Monday night, the first program in a four-part filmed account of the trial of a Denver Black Panther, Lauren R. Watson, charged with three misdemeanors including resisting an officer.

The leisurely program opened with introductions of the defendant who was a bearded and angry young man, his defense counsel, the prosecutor, the woman judge and the arresting officer.

The conflict and drama were there, but the dull, most tedious part of a criminal trial is the opening: the selection of the jury. In this case it took an entire day to pick a jury of six. The camera recorded the questioning, much of it repetitious, and the legal squabbling and the challenges.

The proceedings were edited down to less than 90 minutes, but there were long and rather sterile periods for the viewer, however those who stayed with it probably were hooked.

Part two, tonight, will show the start of the trial. The question is whether an all-white, middle-class, middle-aged jury can give a young, black radical a fair trial. What will transpire during the next three nights, with all its redundancy and the winniness of the lawyers, has more real excitement than the snappier court-room treatments of fiction writers.

ABC's new Monday night series of half-hour actuality programs, "Now," start with the first of three timely treatments on income tax returns.

It was, for the most part, do-it-yourself stuff with emphasis on deductible and nondeductible items. It was crammed with a surprisingly large amount of helpful information.

Financial writer Sylvia Porter and ABC's economics specialist, Louis Rukeyser, collaborated. Miss Porter passed along the tips on deductions. She suggested some overlooked deductions such as automobile expenses on cars used for business and taxes on gasoline used for lawn mowers and snow blowers.

Rukeyser reported on a visit to the computer room in one of the national tax centers where machines can print out a three year record of any taxpayer in minutes—and flag any questionable returns.

It was bright, lively and helpful and augurs well for the rest of the series. It comes, however, at an awkward time—after the ABC Monday night movie and before the late news. It is likely to be overlooked by viewers not watching the movie.
